

Vacancy: Volunteer Blogger

The Ecosystem Restoration Foundation is looking for an experienced blogger to work with the global Ecosystem Restoration Communities (ERC) movement with a specific focus on telling the stories of the restoration communities around the world that are part of the movement.

Organisation profile and context

The ERC movement currently includes more than 80 Ecosystem Restoration Communities about 35 countries across six continents. These communities are reversing ecological destruction and restoring biodiversity.

ERCs are collaborative, living labs where locals and global restorers not only take on restoration, but also innovate, learn from their practices, refine them, and share their learnings with the world. ERCs are developing the proof-of-concept in local landscapes that will inspire and attract all who live there to join the worldwide effort to restore ecosystems and introduce regenerative practices that will make it possible for humanity to survive on this planet.

The global movement is supported by the Ecosystem Restoration Foundation in the Netherlands which builds the movement of Ecosystem Restoration Communities, facilitates knowledge exchange and education, supports storytelling and communications, helps Ecosystem Restoration Communities connect with volunteers around the world, and - where possible - supports fundraising. There is a team of 12 people active at the Foundation.

Who we are looking for

We are looking for a person with experience in researching, writing and editing blogs.

You will be working with some of the world-leading experts on ecosystem restoration and some of the boldest and most visionary earth restorers. You will be working with a global team of professionals based in different countries in Europe and across the globe, and with a network of global restoration initiatives representing many different cultures and languages.

The ideal candidate should possess these qualities:

- A passion for writing and telling compelling stories
- Good written communication skills
- Strong English grammar skills
- Understanding of organic search and search engine optimization
- Skilled at proofreading copy
- Story researching skills
- A genuine interest in the web of life and in the health of our ecosystems and all creatures depending on them.
- You are empathic with the people we support and are able to establish warm and supportive relationships with them.
- Open-mindedness, flexibility, intercultural communication and cultural sensitivity are key to succeeding in this role.

We welcome applications from candidates from all over the world and from all groups in society. The foundation wishes to mirror the diversity of the movement it supports.

How to volunteer

If you are interested in this important role, please email us explaining why you think you could be the person for this role.

There is no deadline for applications as this is an ongoing opportunity.